Local farm groups and others are urged to call about getting on the list for grant money to help fund environmental outreach and education projects that deal with water quality.

The South Nation Conservation Authority (SNCA) has a new program through its clean water committee that provides aid grants of up to $500 to agricultural organizations to assist with clean-water related information and education efforts like workshops and tours.

Deadline for grant applications this year is Dec. 1. Contact Ronda Boutz for more information, toll-free, at 1-877-984-2948, extension 251.
